

THE PROBLEM WITH HEARTACHE

The problem with heartache is that there's no one-size-fits-all relief package. You can go to classes; you can try to embrace change. But when you wake up at two in the morning, a smile on your face because you've dreamt about the could have—the should have—nothing will console you. Because seconds later, you remember. And remembering can rip you apart***Kate will do anything for her family. It's why...

Reader's Opinions

Kate is 19, Australian, and suffering depression ever since her boyfriend Lachlan died six months ago. Her parents are struggling financially because her dad suffers from Huntington's Disease and his physical deterioration is becoming rapid. Kate met Lee several months before when he sang at a benefit for Lachlan's funeral. There seemed...

How do you move on when the most important person in your life dies? For Kate it hasn't been easy. Lee-freaking-Collins, for some reason I never quite understood, is drawn to Kate. He hires her to manage his super famous band's tour, and the minute she steps onto the tour bus, LET THE CONSTANT FLIRTING BEGIN! They exchange a few...
