

CANOEING WITH THE CREE

"Canoeing with the Cree is an all-time favorite of mine."--Ann Bancroft, Arctic explorer
"Imagination and determination are the stuff of this book." --The Beaver
In 1930 two novice paddlers--Eric Sevareid and Walter C. Port--launched a secondhand 18-foot canvas canoe into the Minnesota River at Fort Snelling for an ambitious summer-long journey from Minneapolis to Hudson Bay. Without benefit of radio, motor, or good maps, the teenagers made their way over 2,250 miles of rivers, lakes, and difficult portages....

Reader's Opinions

Reading this book was a delight for many different reasons only one of which was the adventure story of two teens navigating waterways from Minneapolis to Hudson Bay during the summer of 1930. The author/adventurer, Eric,...

Imagine two teenagers paddling a canoe from Minneapolis to the Hudson Bay without the benefits of GPS, cell phones or tracking systems. That is what Eric Sevareid and Walter C. Port chose to do in 1930. The book is a well-written journal outlining their adventure. It also speaks about the time in history and peoples reactions to each...
