Reader's Opinions

A wonderful collection of poems by Ferlinghetti about his beloved San Francisco. Each poem captures a different aspect of the city and its people, what Ferlinghetti loved and what he detested about what happens in his city. One of my favorites of the collection is "A Report on a Happening in Washington Square, San Francisco," which...

Bought this little book at City Lights itself, on my first visit to that great bookstore. Thought it appropriate. Never loved Ferlinghetti's poetry, but there's some good ones in here, representative of the city he loves so much. Particularly enjoyed "Baseball Canto," about reading poetry while watching a Giants game in the late 60s/early...
